

Residential conditions plan for employee accommodation

Employers who provide accommodation to their employees must ensure that the residence meets a number of requirements.

If there are two or more employees living in the same residence, you must prepare a residential conditions plan that shows how you have taken into account preventing Covid-19 infections among the employees occupying the residence.

The Danish Working Environment Authority carries out inspections to ensure that employers have prepared a residential conditions plan, and you must be able to provide a physical or electronic version of that plan.

Residential conditions plan

At minimum, the plan should contain the following information

Employer's contact details

Number of occupants in the residence

Residence address

Description of:
How the employer has taken into account preventing Covid-19 infections among occupants in the residence, including instructions provided by the employer to the occupants concerning frequent, effective cleaning and hygiene

Size of the residence

Download template

On the Danish Working Environment Authority's website, you can find a template that you can utilise to help you prepare this plan.
